Minister meets with aboriginal organizations (06/11/22)

NB 1445

Nov. 22, 2006

FREDERICTON (CNB) - Minister of Post-Secondary Education, Training and Labour Ed Doherty, who is also minister responsible for the aboriginal affairs secretariat, met with leaders of New Brunswick's aboriginal organizations today.

Similar to the meeting held last week with the leaders of New Brunswick's First Nations communities, Doherty said that this meeting was also the first of many the provincial government intends to hold regularly with aboriginal organizations.

"I am proud to have hosted this event, which demonstrates our commitment to honour our Charter for Change pledge to hold regular meetings with aboriginal organizations," Doherty said. "We understand that progress will only be achieved if our government continues to work co-operatively with aboriginal communities and organi[illegible]tions.

"This meeting and ones that will follow will enhance the relationship between the provincial government and New Brunswick's First Nations communities. First Nations leaders have told us that meaningful relationships are a prerequisite to genuine discussions and partnership. By developing partnerships with First Nations communities and aboriginal organizations, our government hopes to strengthen New Brunswick."
